

Apnea

In the long seconds when there is no breath,
Beneath the light his belly motionless,
Have you not felt your forehead turning wet,
And naked helplessness crawl like a snake
Within your skin, and hissing whispering
Of cool, mud-smelling ways beneath a stone.

Robert Zufall, MD
Dover, NJ